OPEN LETTER TO COUNCIL OF EUROPE AI CONVENTION NEGOTIATORS:
DO NOT WATER DOWN OUR RIGHTS

We call on the State Parties and the EU negotiating the text of the Framework Convention on Artificial Intelligence, Human Rights, the Rule of Law and Democracy to equally cover the public and private sectors and reject blanket exemptions regarding national security and defence.

The world has witnessed the way in which AI systems that are largely provided and often used by private companies affect people and societies. The Council of Europe is responding to the various calls for regulating AI – but it is about to agree on a Convention on Human Rights, Democracy and the Rule of Law that risks giving companies a free pass.

As the negotiation of the Council of Europe Framework Convention on Artificial Intelligence, Human Rights, Democracy and the Rule of Law is entering its final phases – with the last plenary planned for mid-March –, the publicly available Draft Convention indicates that some negotiating states are seeking to weaken the Convention by enabling states to leave private companies, including Big Tech, out of scope. This would result in giving these companies a blank check rather than effectively protecting human rights, democracy and the rule of law.

A hollowed-out Convention will provide little meaningful protection to individuals who are increasingly subject to powerful AI systems prone to bias, human manipulation, and the destabilisation of democratic institutions.

As for public activities, some states are also pushing for a blanket exemption with regard to national security and defence. Nothing justifies the unconditional waiving of the safeguards set in international, European and national law that usually apply in these fields.

Therefore, we, the undersigned citizens, members of civil society organisations, academic and research institutions, experts in artificial intelligence and digital technologies, call on the EU and the State Parties negotiating the text of the Convention to give their unwavering support for the Convention
(i) to cover equally the public and private sectors
(ii) to unequivocally reject blanket exemptions regarding national security and defence.
